EVERY American should read today's story about the Monroe Doctrine. Key Pittman thinks it should be abandoned. He is in a position to help America abandon it, being chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee (Borah's old job). And having just returned from the London clinic on "What's ailing the World?" he may be in a position to advise us correctly.

Roman Triumph to Be Awarded Balbo and His Squadron

All Italy Will Greet 23 Ships on Their Return Saturday

LAST HOP REMAINS Armada Will Fly Home 1,300 Miles From Lisbon, Portugal

ROME, Italy — (AP) — The Roman Triumph, a custom not followed for many centuries, will be revived Saturday to give General Italo Balbo and members of his trans-Atlantic squadron a rousing welcome home.

The celebration also will have the purpose of paying tribute to Premier Mussolini as an inspiration for Italy's renaissance in aviation.

General Balbo, advised the air ministry Thursday that he intends to bring the armada to Ostia, Rome's new port, from Lisbon, 1,300 miles away, without stopping.

The triumph was a public spectacle given in ancient Rome in honor of a general who returned home successful in war.

It was a solemn procession along the Via Sacra up to the capitol, where sacrifice was offered up to Jupiter. The victor stood by in a chariot drawn by four horses—his captives marching before, and his troops following behind.

Gentry on Refund Bond Committee

Hope Man Serving for State in Bank and Insurance Negotiations

LITTLE ROCK — Three St. Louis bankers, representing holders of refund improvement district bonds, will join four lawyers and bond dealers from New York and Des Moines, representing holders of Martineau highway bonds, here Thursday for a conference with a subcommittee of Governor Fulton's special Bond Committee to continue negotiations toward a modified highway debt refunding plan.

The group representing holders of direct highway bonds conferred with the Bond Committee two hours, after which the subcommittee, composed of State Bank Commissioner Marion Watson, State Insurance Commissioner U. A. Gentry and Carl Hollis of Warren, was appointed and authorized to carry on whatever negotiations may be necessary to determine what concessions the various groups of bondholders are willing to make.

Holders of old road improvement district bonds were not represented at the conference, but the subcommittee and the state bond group representatives, at a conference in Mr. Watson's office invited the road improvement district bond group to send representatives to participate in a conference Thursday.

The St. Louis representatives will be W. L. Henningway, president of the Mercantile Commerce Trust Company; W. B. Smith, president of the First National bank, and Kellon White, representing G. H. Walker & Co., bond dealers.

Representatives of holders of direct state bonds who participated were: David M. Wood of New York, member of the law firm of Thompson, Wood & Hoffman, which approved all issues of direct state bonds; Kenneth M. Keefe, of Halsey-Stuart & Co., New York bond house which handled all the state bonds; J. G. Gamble of Gamble, Read and Howland, Des Moines law firm, and Fred W. Hubbell of Des Moines, representing the Equitable Life Insurance Company.

Check Is Cashed Twice; He's Jailed

U. S. Sent Him Photostatic Copy—Negro Cashed It Also

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — (AP) — Into Fort Davis, Ala., a few weeks ago came Ed Wright, negro, to cash a government check just arrived from Washington.

Money in his jeans, he returned home. A few days later a letter from Uncle Sam arrived containing a photostatic copy of the check, and a request that the signature be verified.

One hundred years ago the United States drew a chalk-line down the Atlantic ocean and told Europe to stay on her side. We said:

1. You can keep the colonies you now have in Central and South America—but you can't settle any new ones.

2. You mustn't interfere with any American government. If the little American republics south of us need spanking, we'll attend to it ourselves.

One hundred years has passed. The little South American republics are mostly grown up. Europe hasn't made a threat of any kind since the Venezuelan affair between President Grover Cleveland and Great Britain 40 years ago.

Yet the Monroe Doctrine has probably caused more suspicion and ill-feeling among the South American peoples it was intended to help, than among the European peoples against whom it was directed. Some of our Latin neighbors have always felt Uncle Sam was an imperialistic lion merely keeping Europe away from choice lambs he himself intended to devour.

Returning from the unsuccessful London trade conference, Senator Pittman knows that if the United States is to recapture the export business she lost when Europe went bankrupt, she must find it in the South American markets.

He seems to believe it would be wise to publicly proclaim that the Monroe Doctrine is abandoned.

Actually, however, nothing this government may say can change the facts of the case.

The world has understood for 100 years that the United States was "top dog" in the Western hemisphere.

Whatever we say now, Europe will regard it as merely a diplomatic statement intended for consumption among our Latin neighbors. If Europe ever seeks to interfere in South America, the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine will come walking back from whatever grave the diplomats have consigned it to. All of us know that.

In the New World our forefathers set up a new order of things political and economic. It was the one and only original "New Deal"—and the American pioneers made it stick.

We got away from the royalty, the nobility, the priesthood, the ghostly taxation and oppression of the Old World, and in the limitless geography of another hemisphere we set up a new civilization on a grand scale.

The Monroe Doctrine kept South America in line with ourselves, preserving the whole Western hemisphere from the political evils of crowded, ill-natured Europe.

Just as our opportunity, our liberty, and our happiness, flow from the very bigness of this new continent, so do our mistakes arise from the same source.

America makes money or loses it in a big way.

She has either a boom or a panic—the tempo of a people used to big things.

I think, rather than gripe about the depression from which we are now escaping, the memory of the Monroe Doctrine is an inspiration to all of us to pull unified for better times.

We should support the NRA program.

We should pull hard for everything our leaders recommend.

It's worth any price we have to pay, just to live in the United States.

Fate of Machado Rests With Cuban Liberal Adherents

Call for Resignation of President Is Debated by His Party

REPUBLIC DEFIANT Roosevelt Threatens Action—Cuban Hot-Heads Reply

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — The question whether President Machado shall resign his post to bring peace to Cuba, which is under a formally-declared state of war as a result of the menace of revolution, was placed Thursday before the national executive committee of General Machado's Liberal party.

The executive committee met to consider a formula for peace presented by United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, acting as mediator between Machado supporters and the Opposition.

The formula requires the withdrawal of Machado to make way for a president approved by all parties.

Meanwhile the general strike, which brought on the conflict continued despite the efforts and expectations of the government.

G.O.P. With Roosevelt HYDE PARK — (AP) — President Roosevelt sent firm word to Cuba Wednesday night to abandon its political warfare "at the earliest possible moment" in the interest of preventing starvation and preserving economic welfare.

Mr. Roosevelt gave his notice personally to the Cuban ambassador and it was interpreted unofficially as meaning that a political rally by force must cease.

State of War HAVANA, Cuba—Cuba's turbulent political crisis appeared Wednesday night rapidly to be drawing to a head.

President Machado, striking at the political enemies seeking to force him out, decreed that a state of war exists throughout the island and ordered the army to occupy Havana.

The first regiment of soldiers marching in the city from Camp Columbian. They were stationed in the botanical gardens near Havana University. Guards were placed over all bridges leading out of Havana.

The announcement that a state of war exists was made over the government radio by Secretary of State Ferra, who had just returned from the London Economic Conference. Ferra added that should there be armed intervention by the United States the Cuban government would resist to the last ditch.

He announced that all civilians are to obey orders from soldiers and police radio stations are prohibited from broadcasting anything except music with the exception of the government station which broadcasts addresses from government officials.

Reports from the capital are that congress voted to grant President

Illinois Tourist Advertises Hope

He Writes Peoria Newspaper an Account of Big Watermelons

Hope watermelons got some excellent advertising this week when Edgar Allen Whitney, 213 North Underhill street, Peoria, Ill., returned home with a good-sized melon he had purchased here, together with some picture postcards showing past champion melons.

Mr. Whitney wrote a humorous letter to one of the Peoria newspapers, a clipping of which he mailed back to Paul Briant, of Briant's drugstore. In part the letter informed an Illinois newspaper audience as follows:

"Spent one day at Hope, Ark., the home of the big watermelons. We intended bringing a melon home for you, but could not find one small enough to go through the door of the car. . . . We had a peculiar experience while visiting one of the watermelon patches. When we were ready to leave, the car was missing and we were afraid that someone had stolen it, but after looking around for some time Mr. Potter climbed a tree, and from that point discovered that he had parked the car between two watermelons where it could not be seen from the ground."

Johnson Awaits Reply on Ultimatum to Retail Store Trade

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Recovery Administration Thursday revealed a ruling whereby all privately-owned utilities, whether controlled by the state in which they are located or not, must come under the NRA wage and work-time supervision.

This matter emerged as the dominant development of a day filled with continued hearings on codes proposed for coal and other industries.

Meanwhile, Administrator Hugh Johnson awaited replies from the general retailers and grocers to his ultimatum of Wednesday that store operation hours must not be reduced to avoid having to hire new workers.

Half Million in Bonds Is Forged

Scandal Envelopes State Treasurer's Office in Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan. — (AP) — National Guardsmen took sentry duty in the marble halls of the Kansas Treasury Wednesday while state and federal officials pressed an inquiry into the clever forgery of at least nine issues of municipal bonds.

Presaging possible action by the state Legislative Council against Tom Boyd, state treasurer, Gov. Alf M. Lind ordered the National Guard vigil together with a check of Boyd's records by state accountants.

Governor Stanton said he did not know "how this scandal is going to reach," and other officials could only conjecture whether more than the $658,000 in spurious bonds, revealed Tuesday, would be uncovered.

Ronald Finney, known as a bond broker and grain speculator, is under $25,000 bond pending a hearing September 5 on a specific charge of uttering $20,000 in forged bonds to the National Bank of Topeka, which was not affected by the closing orders.

One of the institutions closed, the Fidelity State and Savings bank at Emporia, is headed by W. W. Finney, father of the broker. He said it would not open in the immediate future.

Senator Pittman, Foreign Chief, Says Europe No Threat

Senate Chairman Would Abandon Historic U. S. Policy

IS 100 YEARS OLD Monroe Doctrine Originally Protected Young Republics

NEW YORK — (AP) — Senator Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, renounced the Monroe doctrine as an outworn policy Thursday.

Returning from the world economic conference at London, he said he believed:

"For the purpose of assuring Latin-American people we are sincere in our announced policy not to interfere, we should make a declaration that there is no longer any necessity for the Monroe doctrine," and that it is an outworn policy.

The purpose of the doctrine, he said, was to prevent European governments from extending their power to South America, but "at present the danger of European powers attempting to extend their governments to Latin America is negligible."

The Monroe Doctrine President James Monroe (1758-1831) first declared the doctrine which bears his name in a message to the congress in 1823.

The doctrine is based upon two passages in Monroe's message, and aims to forbid European powers from attempting to colonize South America, or intervening in the political affairs of South American republics.

No More Colonies The first passage referred to a boundary dispute in Northwest United States, then at issue between Russia, Great Britain and our nation.

"The occasion," said President Monroe, "has been judged proper for asserting as a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved that the American continents, by the free and independent conditions which they have assumed and maintained are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers."

No Intervention In its second phase the Monroe Doctrine struck back at the Holy Alliance, or European Concert, which sought to re-establish the power of Spain over South American republics which had successfully revolted from her. On this point, President Monroe said:

"We owe it to candor and the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers, to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

"With the existing colonies and dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and just principles acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than a manifestation of the unfriendly disposition towards the United States."

65,268 Added to Railroad Payroll

Co-Ordinator Eastman Warns No Evasion Will Be Permitted

WASHINGTON — Announcing a net gain of 65,268 in railroad employment in the last 70 days, Federal Co-Ordinator of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman Wednesday issued a sharp warning to railroad management against attempts to evade the labor protection provisions of the new railroad act.

At the same time, Mr. Eastman submitted to the regional co-ordinating committees six specific projects for eliminating waste and duplication in the services and facilities of the carriers. All of the projects, he said, could be carried out by two or more roads together without violating the labor clause of the railroad bill.

The law provides, Mr. Eastman pointed out, that the number of railway workers cannot be reduced as the result of any action taken under the authority of its provisions. Any harmonization of services or elimination of facilities effected by the regional committees, he declared, would be regarded as having been effected under the railroad act and would be subject to the labor restriction.

WASHINGTON LETTER

NRA Announced at Low Wages
By ROBERT BUCHER
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON—Much attention
has developed around NRA head quarters at revelations of the extremely low wages on which hundreds of thousands of Americans will be working.

When prices rise too rapidly, the new minimum wages should materialize in living standards for many families.

For instance, these people in the Pennsylvania shirt factory who were forced by the department of labor to be earning $2 a week.

That was a horrible example, though it could be duplicated in other states.
Nevertheless, 25 per cent of women in shirt factories earn less than $6 a week.

President William Green of the A.
F. of L. pointed out at the lumber expo hearing that sawmills in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and the Carolinas were paying 1932 wages of 9 to 12 cents an hour.

Average earnings for all industries
at the end of 1932, however, were 46.7
cents an hour.

Lumber Mill Wages
Green said lumber mill wages in the south had averaged from $3.76 in one state to $4.85 in the highest paying state, which meant many workers earned less than $3 a week.

He also said that in the shoe industry, cotton mill hands paid $1.45
a day, Georgia road workers 19 to 30 cents an hour and Chicago packing house workers as low as $3 a week.
Common labor has been discovered
waiting for five cents an hour.

School teachers, seeking a code, say their average annual wage (dropped from $180 in 1920 to $150).

New Deal Music
When you get to the song and singing show," remarked Frank R. Wilson, chief of organization for the NRA musician's campaign, "you know what drive is a success."

He pointed to various unsolicited contributions. There isn't an official song yet—but the first one submitted came from Fred Cromweide of New York and the chorus goes like this:

"Get together for Recovery
Get together for Recovery,
Now is the time to plan
Cooperate all we can,
And dear Uncle Sam—we're all with
you strong.
Our millions can't be wrong.
Get together for Recovery. Get together for Recovery.
Hurrah for the New Deal. Hurrah
for Recovery.
For you and me.
Get together for Recovery."

and beauty culture and their names

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

She sat up at the breakfast table and waited for a little lady. Her mother brought her food, then broke bread up into the egg cup and mixed it around.

"The little girl started to cry.
"What's wrong, darling?"
"I don't like little bread. I want big pieces."
"Oh, I'm sorry. I'll break it bigger the next time. It tastes just the same."
The child ate the egg, or part of it,
then pushed it away. "I don't like it."
"All right. You didn't eat your cereal though. Come on, I'll feed it to you."
More tears started. "It hasn't any sugar on it."
"Well, don't cry. You have to stop crying for every little thing, dear.
See! There's another spoonful. It's very sweet now. And I'll put more milk on. Come, now, be a good girl and eat your breakfast."

Tears for Everything
A mouthful or two was the end of that. At least the little lady was utilized and the star boarder allowed to leave the table. Her mother blew the tub of a nose and she was off for the day.

In a few minutes she was back crying again. There's a big bee on the porch. He'll sting me."
"I'll chase him away. Come on, he won't hurt you. But stop crying.
You cry for everything. I don't know what I'm going to do with you."
It was the same every few minutes.
The children next door had found a doll of hers. The truck on the street back-fired and scared her. The button came off her panty-waist. A boy called her "yellow-head." She couldn't find her book. A hundred things happened. Tears—tears for everything.

It was a typical day.

What was her mother to do? For a long time she had sympathized.
And at last she got impatient.

With a cry-baby child it is nearly always the same.

Methods of Handling
Such a child is to be pitied. She is, if we are to know the facts, deeply selfish. No, not in the grabby way natural to most children, but in the quiet miserable way of turning her eyes in on herself. She interprets the smallest commonplace in terms of her own feelings. She feeds on emotion, preferably sad emotion, and is invariably unhappy.

She wasn't hungry for her breakfast. A little boy would probably have pushed back his food, upset his water and run off. This is better. He isn't eating himself up with misery over it. He isn't dramatizing it. The hell-for-leather youngster is a healthy type.

Too drastic handling only makes her cry-baby worse. Never call them cry-babies. That is cruel. They cannot help it. Sympathy or indifference are not cures either. To be very busy with interesting things. Pleasant children to play with. Patience. To cultivate an interest in doing things for others. To turn thoughts out instead of in. These are wisest ways.

Bleaching is one of the steps on the stairway to beauty.

A way to whiten and bleach the skin
is one of the most frequent questions asked a beauty editor. Usually the question is followed by a sentence expressing a desire to know about a bleach that is inexpensive.

Of course, there are many prepared bleaches. They are specially made for bleaching and contain ingredients which whiten the complexion. If you can find one which suits your purpose
—and your pocketbook—its name use it. If not, there are some simple bleaches which will aid you in your desire for a whiter skin.

Everyone knows that lemon juice is a good bleach for the hands and elbows. Keep a piece of it on your sinks and use it when you have finished the dishes. Keep another piece in the bathroom to be used on your elbows.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TODAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty asstant to EARLE BARNESS, advertising manager of Dixby's department store, secretly marries DICK RADELL, a construction superintendent. Dick opposes her continued employment and pleads
for a home but Eve is determined to go on working.

The same day Eve learns that she is to be sent to New York for the store and must leave that night. She does not tell Dick this news until they are at dinner.
He sees her aboard her train.

In New York Eve meets FRED
CARTER, dress buyer for Dixby's,
who introduces her to THERON REECE. Reece is much attracted by Eve. He suggests her by trying to kiss her in a taxi. Eve leaves him without even saying good night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

EVE sat at the desk in her hotel
room until nearly dawn, writing a letter to Dick. After her unpleasant experience with Theron Reece in the taxi cab she longed for the safety and contentment she always felt in Dick's presence. In the letter she did not mention any of her companions except Freda Carter.

Freda left the next evening after a day in which she and Eve were extremely busy. They dined together and Freda asked Eve to call at her apartment after she returned to Lake City.

For the rest of the week Eve devoted herself to work but in spite of this preoccupation she was worried. No word had come from Dick. Pride would not allow her to call him by long distance, though she hungered for the sound of his voice. Each night she wrote him a long letter, pouring out her love.

After Freda's departure Eve felt the need of companionship and called on Irene Prentiss. They had been classmates in high school.
Freda had gone to New York immediately following graduation and now, after five years of marriage, was still working in the office of a financial magazine
where she had begun as magazine reporter. Today, however, she was assistant editor of that journal.

Irene appeared with several galley proofs in her hand. Eve thought she looked tired and a little worn. Irene seemed glad to see her but explained that it was press day. Eve realized she should have telephoned to learn when it would be convenient for her to call. Evidently New York business offices were not so informal as those in Lake City.

They went to lunch together but it was a hasty meal at a nearby restaurant. Irene wore a dark fur jacket that Eve admired.

"It's really dyed bunny," the other admitted. "The difference between this and the sable I coveted went into stocks. I'm playing the market, darling, and it's the most exciting thing I ever did. I didn't need much to start; I pyramid.
You must let me give you some tips!"

LATER she invited Eve to ride home with her for dinner and at five o'clock they met. Eve was immediately thrown into a seething mass of humanity homeward bound via the subway.

Elisworth Prentiss, Freda's husband, was an instructor in a private school and each afternoon arrived home an hour or so before his wife returned from the office.
He usually started preparations for their dinner.

The Prentiss apartment consisted of a luxuriously furnished living room and a spacious sleeping room with all its furnishings in pairs—two beds, two chests of drawers, a glider chair and sturdily

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

Eve tried to tell him how much she had worried all week, fearing he would not forgive her for having run away.

DICK tucked her into the roadster and whisked her away from the crowded thoroughfare to the boulevard along the lake shore.
He had reserved a suite at the Miramar, one of the most attractive of Lake City's apartment hotels. Eve was enchanted with the rooms. Through narrow French windows she looked out over the idle, wintry lake.

"Dick!" she cried. He caught her in his arms and held her close.
Then she tried to tell him how much she had worried all week,
fearing he would not forgive her having run away.

"Do you mind awfully that your wife is going to continue working?" she asked hesitantly.

"I mind—yes," Dick answered.
"But I told you last week how I felt about it. From now on I'll be up to you."

Eve felt uncomfortable. She was not quite sure what attitude she wished him to take in this matter.
"You didn't write," she accused him.

"I didn't run away from you,"
he reminded her. "And—it was silly, I suppose—but I couldn't bring myself to address a letter to my wife as Miss Eve Bayless.
Besides, I was having too much grief on the job last week to find time to write in the daytime.
Evenings I spent looking at apartments."

"Well, the last I saw of you you seemed to have pretty lively consolation!" Eve said pointedly.

"What do you mean?"

"I thought perhaps your time
was taken up with your friends."
Eve had not meant to refer to the young man and a girl Dick had met at the station the night of their

We'd like to leave but daffodils to mark our little way, To leave but tulips red and white behind as we stray; We'd like to pass away from earth and feel we'd left behind But roses and forget-me-nots for all who come to find. We'd like to sow the barren spots with all the flowers of earth, To leave a path where those who come should find but gentle mirth; And when at last we're called upon to join the heavenly throng We'd like to feel along our way we'd left no sign of wrong. ## FATE OF MACHADO

Machado a leave of absence for six months so that he can vacate the office and leave the island. As to whether Machado will accept this is problematical. Thus far he has given no indication of accepting.

Welles Walling
Ambassador Welles today says he is simply "awaiting developments at the palace." In case the president should resign the succession goes to the secretary of state, but the incumbent of this office, Ferraro, is disqualified, being a native born Italian.

One suggestion in some of the programs is that Ferraro resign and be named as secretary of state by Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, former Cuban minister to Washington. He is said to be acceptable to the opposition, to the Machado government and to Washington. He has been non-factional in Cuban politics since the opposition to the Machado regime began.

Believe Jealousy Behind Poisoning

Mississippi Doctor Had Planned to Go Back to His Wife

GREENWOOD, Miss.—(P)—District Attorney Arthur Jordan was working Wednesday on the theory that plans of Dr. John Preston Kennedy to remarry his divorced wife provided a motive for his poisoning with a deadly drug that affected the kidneys.

Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, 33, woman specialist in children's diseases and former clinical associate of Dr. Dean, was being held in the Greenwood jail charged with murder on the basis of a death-bed statement of the dying doctor.

Barry Chandler of West Point, cousin of Dr. Kennedy's divorced wife, said they had set the date of their remarriage that would have been 15 days from the day the doctor was poisoned. The couple had planned to remarry and provide a home for their daughter.

On his deathbed, Dr. Kennedy was quoted as saying he had called on Dr. Dean at her home, which she shared with an aunt, and that in drinking whisky from a glass he recognized the metallic taste of the poisoning.

He left the home, he said, and attempted to rid himself of the poison and for five days he tried to use his own knowledge of medicine to check the ravages of the drug. Realizing his treatment was not a success, he said, he called in other physicians, who sent him to a Jackson hospital where he died.

Dr. Kennedy was born in d'Le in Simpson county, Mississippi, in 1892 and received a doctor's degree from the Memphis Hospital Medical College and took a special course in the New York Postgraduate Medical School and Hospital. He was a first lieutenant in the Medical Corps during the war.

In 1924 he married Miss Bessie Barry Brunson of West Point. They were divorced last spring but relatives said Mrs. Kennedy had refused to say why she divorced her husband.

Billion Needed for Relief in Winter

States Refusing to "Kick in" Won't Get Federal Aid

WASHINGTON—(P)—Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, said Wednesday a billion dollars would be needed to "do the job" of unemployment relief properly through the coming winter and expressed hope the states and cities would match the government $500,000,000 fund for that purpose.

He said many states were not co-operating with the government in furnishing assistance to the jobless and their families, and he has already put six states "on notice" that no more federal money would be forthcoming unless they spent more liberal for their own destitute. These states are West Virginia, Texas, Ohio, Kentucky, Alabama and Michigan.

The largest plant in the world manufacturing synthetic fuel, gas and oil, is at Glenboig, Glasgow. Its daily output is 100 tons of fuel, 15,000 gallons of crude oil and 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Don't try homemade treatments or newfangled remedies! Take that good old Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Soon you will be yourself again, for Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic not only relieves the symptoms of Malaria, but destroys the infection itself.

The tasteless quinine in Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic kills the Malarial infection in the blood while the iron it contains builds up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and fortify against further attack. The twofold effect is absolutely necessary to the overcoming of Malaria. Besides being a dependable remedy for Malaria, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is also an excellent tonic of general use. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle today at any store. —Adv.

Liquor Survey by Rockefeller Son

He Turned From Prohibition to Regulation a Year Ago

NEW YORK—(P)—A study of liquor control laws throughout the world, sponsored by John D. Rockefeller Jr., is nearing completion, it was learned Wednesday.

On the assumption that the Eighteenth amendment "will ultimately be repealed and that the problem of control of the liquor traffic will be one upon which the fullest accurate information will be of value," the study was instituted by Rockefeller, who, for years an ardent prohibitionist, announced himself last summer in favor of repeal.

The multi-millionaire, at that time, pledged himself to support "practical measures for the promotion of genuine temperance."

Raymond B. Foedick, a trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation and former under-secretary general of the League of Nations, is supervising the liquor traffic study.

Particular attention is being paid in the survey, it was said, to Canada, Finland, Norway and Sweden.

Maybe you'll think I'm a bit inconsistent. Most things I'm fond of are really quite feminine... dainty, frilly frocks—delicate desserts—yes, and delicate compliments, too.
